The Lenz brick house is five bays long and two bays deep with a one bay frame wing on the west side of the house. Originally it was three bays long with central dcor having transom. The two other baye were added with a ~~1/2~~ door on the east side of the addition. both doors have the same trim typical of the mid 19th century. There are three chimneys at the apex of the "A" roof. The windows have 6/6 sash, paneled and louvered shutters on the first and second storys respectively. The cornice of the house is constructed of stepped brick. Behind the house is a stone retaining wall and in the yard are some good large old trees. The barns are also very good examples of the middle of the 19th century, although they are slightly run-down.
